MEXICAN OUTRAGES

Hawaii is just getting the echoes of a sensation sprung in the United States senate two weeks ago, when Fall of New Mexico charged in a ringing speech that Mexico's outrages upon American life and American property have gone beyond the last point of tolerance. Fall's speech makes warm reading even for the staid Congressional Record. He declares that five hundred millions of American property has been destroyed in the last year, and that American women have been outraged and killed within fifty miles of Uncle Sam's borders.

The New Mexico senator goes on with detailed facts and figures that are incontrovertible. Heretofore, the somewhat meager information reaching Hawaii has been that the stories of Mexico's ruthless disregard of American citizens were exaggerated. In the light of Fall's relentless indictment, the time for Uncle Sam to stop the outrages has come.

"DAGO RED" REGULATION

An illuminating remark, made to the Star-Bulletin by a man of this city who is in the liquor business, lights up the problem of stamping out the "dago red" evil more clearly than a page of argument.

"All kinds of 'young' wines were being brought here," said this man frankly, "and I went to my company on the mainland and said that as we couldn't very well lower our prices, the way to meet the competition was to raise the age-limit on our wines. We made a rule not to bring any wines here under two years old, and the consequence is that we met the competition of the wines that were and are being brought here as soon as they are made."

No better proof could be brought forth of the necessity for regulating the age of the wines to prevent the importation of this dangerous stuff. When winemakers themselves admit that the "young" wines are dangerous and should not be imported, there is no need of argument.

While the license commissioners and the inspector are turning their attention to the importation of "dago red", they may well investigate the wines made in the islands. If the age-limit is to be fixed on imported wines, it should be fixed on domestic manufactures also.

LET'S HAVE THE IDEAS

Chief of Detectives McDuffie is back from his trip to the coast, reported as carrying twelve pounds additional weight and all the latest devices for nabbing burglars, pickpockets, second-story workers, phony-dice sharks and the rest of the light-fingered and light-footed gentry who live off their wits and other folks' carelessness.

Nobody will protest at the introduction of new-fangled methods in the local police department, particularly in the detective service, provided it gets results. The detective branch of the local police force can afford ideas. For some months past there has been either an epidemic of petty thievery and burglaries or else an uncovering of an epidemic of much longer existence. The Star-Bulletin has repeatedly during the past month published stories of petty crime to which the police did not see fit to give publicity. In several cases, these stories have come from citizens who stated that they had reported the cases to the police and nothing had been done. Acting Chief of Detectives Kellett has done all that could be expected of him during McDuffie's absence, but there is plainly a lack of intelligent direction by men who know better than catching from joy-riding. McDuffie's plan for introducing scientific devices into the police department here is a good one. However, there is no particular use in having a finger-print system unless the police can catch the owners of the fingers.

GRAND OPERA FOR HONOLULU

Announcement of the plans to bring grand opera to Honolulu augurs a wonderful step forward musically for Hawaii.

An experienced theatrical man, believing that the culture, the progress, the generous wealth of this city will encourage a venture of such really great proportions, is working on plans to secure one of two companies, preferably the Lambardi Grand Opera company, for a season of several weeks' duration. In order to make such an ambitious undertaking possible, the public must guarantee financial support, which means that subscriptions must be given in an amount that will insure the company against actual loss.

Honolulu can well afford to give this guarantee, not only for the splendid musical entertainment that will be furnished, not only for the residents of the city, but for the definite and profitable attraction it will furnish for tourists.

It is the plan to bring the company here during the height of the tourist season. The fact that a grand opera company, numbering scores of principals, is to be taken on such a tour will be of enough news value for considerable notice throughout the country, and every theatrical page in the country will feature it. It can be used in promotion literature to immediate advantage. As an asset in Honolulu's scheme for entertaining thousands of tourists next January and February it would be invaluable.

Outside of this somewhat selfish view, there is the opportunity to bring to the islands grand opera of the first order of merit. The Lambardi Opera company has made a big success in the last few years, during which it has been almost constantly on tour and has played in all but the largest cities. It has sent from among its stars several who have become stars in New York, Boston and in London.

The promoters have no idea of reaping a financial harvest. They feel that they will be repaid if they break even. The question is, is Honolulu ready to back public-spiritedly a movement that is larger than mere theatrical enterprise, that will contribute materially to advance along the lines of culture and refinement, while furnishing amusement of the highest order to many thousands of people?

The Star-Bulletin believes that this movement for grand opera can and should be encouraged by every moral and financial support. It will bring dividends in other things than dollars.

Federal Judge Hanford of Washington has resigned and the impeachment proceedings brought against him will be dropped. This ought to be a tip for Archibald, against whom twice as much evidence has already been gathered. Hanford was a remarkably astute judge and his record for industry and steady application, extending over a score of years on the bench is amazing. His personal habits, however, were not of the best, and certain corporation decisions have been turned against him. It might be of interest to Honolulu people to know that one of the men who have waged the fight against him is John H. Perry, of Seattle, the young attorney who visited here a few months ago. Perry's attack on Hanford was carefully planned months before it came into the open.

Let's hope that C. G. Bartlett, if elected supervisor, will be as successful in getting paving laid on the streets at the expense of the county as he is now in getting it laid on a macadam roadway to his private residence.

"A bird in the hand is worth two fleein' by" is the comment of a Scotch reader of the Star-Bulletin upon the news that Gov. Wilson will not resign from his present job until he's elected president.

The steady stream of tourists this summer is but a forecast of the swelling tide coming this way. Realization of this should awaken Honolulu to the responsibilities of caring for her visitors.

Chief of Detectives McDuffie wants to put a finger-print system into police use here. Better stick to the heel-prints, Mac; they're larger and easier to find.

"This is so sudden," murmured the blushing Mr. Roosevelt as they handed him the nomination at the notable social function in Chicago.

That much-discussed wool bill is hardly a case of tempering the shorn wind to the lamb.

The fingerprint of the criminal and the clutch of the law should go hand in hand.

Now that "Soapbox" Barron is back, the fall campaign can start.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

L. D. TIMMONS—Wilson is going to be elected—that's all I learned of the situation on the coast.
JOHN DETOR—Hilo district had rain on Saturday. They have plenty of water on the plantations there now.
CHIEF McDUFFIE—The apparatus which goes with the fingerprint measurement system did not come on the Ventura as I expected and will probably not be here for another week or so now.

REV. FRANK GOODSPEED—I hope next Sunday's attendance at the union evangelical service in the Bijou theater will be as good as it was last Sunday. It is an inspiration to a minister to see such a large crowd.

C. A. COTTRILL—Wish I could be in the east these days. There are three big gatherings of my people there, conventions that I haven't missed for years. But I guess I'll have to spend my vacation on the islands this year.

R. P. FAITHFUL—It is good to get back to Honolulu again. No, I didn't get married while I was away, but thought it would be better to wait until I returned to Honolulu and then look over all the eligible young ladies very carefully before choosing.

GEORGE W. PATY—I don't think that they will confiscate all that wine that Dias has in his possession when he was arrested. On account of the size of the catch, it is more likely they will make him ship it out of the city. There are thirty-seven casks in all, which would take up a good deal of room in the evidence room.

E. B. BLANCHARD—The wall of the Portuguese concerning my home-ownership on Maui is not well founded. I have a year in which to move onto my little seven-acre tract and the law will be complied with. Those people had the same opportunity, and had it under their noses for years without taking advantage of it, before Starrett and I knew of it.

ALEXANDER YOUNG—Certainly the poles on the makai side of Kalaheua avenue between the Queen's place and Makee Island, should come down. This spot is the only place in Honolulu where "breaking" ocean water is touched by a public driveway and the view should not be spoiled by the ugly poles. I have no doubt the companies would be glad to remedy this matter if it was taken up with them.

DEMOCRATS ROAST

travelling up and down the coast and he says that he made more than thirty political speeches in California. "I went up to get a line on the political situation, and I am right in now with the Wilson forces," he said this morning after his return.

However, Democratic leaders this morning definitely went on record against Barron, who they declare, has been a disturbing element in the party and is now to be suppressed.

Chairman Pacheco of the Democratic Central Committee, will probably hold a meeting tomorrow night at which time the question of a ratification meeting will be submitted. The probabilities are that the meeting will be held on the evening of Saturday, August 24.

"We are not responsible for what Barron is doing, and we don't propose to recognize him or this meeting. We have agreed that we will not take part in any meeting that Mr. Barron promotes. The Democratic party in Hawaii has a regularly organized central committee, and we certainly do not intend to let Barron run it. We have come to the conclusion that we will suppress him. He has taken responsibilities upon himself that no sane man would undertake. Of course, the Democrats are in accord with the plans to ratify the party nominees, but we are not in harmony with any move of this kind by an irresponsible outsider. He is evidently doing this to advertise himself by being erratic and eccentric."

"Barron is a disturbing element in Democratic ranks here, and the responsible Democrats have come to the conclusion that it's time to put the soft pedal on him."

It is probable that another ratification meeting will be held in Hilo Saturday night, according to Barron, who after making thirty speeches on the mainland is far from exhausted.

"I talked everybody on the boat deaf, dumb and blind," he said, "and they matched me with the automatic piano, and I won out after talking an hour and thirty-six minutes. The piano blew up."

Two delegates to the national convention, Harry Irwin of Hilo and G. J. Waller of Honolulu, who is also retiring national committeeman, came back on the Wilhelmina, and Allan Herbert, also a delegate, but unable, on account of illness, to go to Baltimore, arrived also. He has been recuperating at a California resort and

R. P. FAITHFUL returned to Honolulu this morning and will devote his attention to preparing for the opening of the new Sweetshop store on Fort street.

MISS COOK arrived by the Ventura yesterday. She will take charge of the trimming department of Jordan's millinery emporium. She is considered an expert along that line.

MR. L. D. TIMMONS was among the returning passengers by the Wilhelmina this morning. Mr. Timmons went to the Coast on business which he reports has had favorable results.

MR. AND MRS. JACK HAWES were passengers in the Kilanea from Hawaii yesterday morning. They have returned to Honolulu to live, and are at present at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

DR. R. W. ANDERSON of Honolulu is at the Sutter with Mrs. Anderson. Mrs. Anderson is a sister of Mrs. Joseph L. Howard, who lives at the Stewart. Young Anderson, who accompanies them, is on his way to enter Cornell.—Examiner.

E. B. BLANCHARD, Territorial Food Inspector, intends leaving on the next Makura for the Coast to spend several weeks in the Yakima Valley, Washington. His father-in-law, who died there recently owned a large fruit ranch and Blanchard is going to aid in the fruit harvest.

PROF. EDWARD H. FARRINGTON head of the Dairy School of the University of Wisconsin was among the passengers arriving this morning from the Coast by the Wilhelmina. Prof. Farrington will visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Farrington for two weeks, and on his return home stop at Salem, Ore., where he is to deliver a series of addresses at the Oregon State Fair.

SCHOOL FUNDS SHORTAGE STORY IS TOO OLD NOW

Condition Described Was Accurate Last April Not Now Says Mr. Gibson

Inspector Gibson of the department of public instruction denied this morning that the school funds for the year 1912-13 are below the demand and declared that while the story printed in the morning paper today was an accurate account of conditions last April, yet since then the department has been entitled by law to an increased allotment sufficient to cover running expenses for the coming term.

According to Inspector Gibson, the sum of $48,500 which was quoted as being the monthly allotment of the educational department for the coming year, was the allotment allowed according to the enrollment figures of last April, yet in June the enrollment had increased sufficiently to allow the department of instruction $50,000 a month under the law, which the inspector declared, would be just about enough to cover the payrolls for the coming year.

Prior to making the appointments for the coming year, a report was submitted to Superintendent Pope this morning showing the number of teachers in the Territory according to nationality. This report shows that Americans, part-Hawaiians and Hawaiians predominate in the order named while Portuguese, British, Chinese, Germans, Japanese and Portuguese follow. There are twenty-six teachers of other nationalities.

The report shows a total of 882 teachers in the Territory; 582 of these being public school teachers while the other 300 teach in private institutions. When the new appointments are made, there will be a total of 667 teachers in the public schools.
